Property Overview

Situated on 9.51± acres in Lecanto, Florida, this is a working lifestyle farm with established production, room to scale operations, and financials in place to support its performance. The farm produces approximately 800–1,000 meat birds annually (3,000–4,000 pounds), along with a laying flock of roughly 100 hens generating over 1,000 dozen eggs per year. Seasonal turkey production further supplements income, while existing infrastructure supports expansion to an estimated 300–500 hens—creating a clear path to increased production without significant additional investment.

The property is improved with two mobile homes, offering immediate on-site living for an owner-operator, housing for employees, or potential supplemental rental income, supporting a hands-on agricultural operation while allowing the business to grow efficiently. A dedicated workshop and production area further enhance the property's functionality, supporting processing, storage, and day-to-day farm operations.

The land offers a balanced mix of open pasture and scattered tree cover, well-suited for rotational grazing, expanded poultry runs, and additional livestock. With agricultural zoning in place, the property is positioned for continued operation, expansion, or transition into a broader small-scale farming enterprise. In addition to the physical assets, the business includes established branding, a website, domain, and customer list—providing immediate continuity and a foundation for future growth.

This is a rare opportunity to step into a functioning farm with proven production, existing infrastructure, and the ability to scale into a larger operation over time.
